

Saving Costs Through Maintenance Management

Problem background

Organizations need to ensure that their technical assets are adequately maintained to remain operational and profitable.

Otherwise, poor maintenance strategies will result in frequent equipment downtime, loss of productivity and thus increasing costs.

There is thus a need that relevant staff ranging from managers, supervisors to operators, to be equipped with maintenance management skills to help develop and implement appropriate maintenance plans, whilst applying appropriate problem solving techniques during maintenance scenarios.

Experienced and qualified tutors

Blended Learning with free access to e-Learning content even after successful course completion

Customized courses to address organization specific maintenance management issues

Our Offer

- 10 hours duration course;
- Training will cover:
 - Principles of Maintenance Management (MM);
 - Maintenance approaches and strategies;
 - Condition-based maintenance;
 - Using Computers in Maintenance Management;
 - Managing maintenance workers;
 - Hands-on case-studies of Good/Bad maintenance Management;
 - Insight into MM best practices.

MECB Corporate Training Division is supported by a team of experienced and highly qualified educators. Our team is trained to MSc or PhD level, and is supported with pedagogic formation. This ensures that our clients receive the right knowledge, in the right format, to help them effectively exploit the acquired skills in a short timeframe.

training@mecb.com.mt